

18.1. AT THE BUS STOP. Replace the noun by a pronoun.

He

A man is sitting in a coffeeshop. The man is reading a newspaper.

But the man is also observing the bus stop. The bus stop is at the corner of the street. A girl is waiting there. The girl is watching her smartphone. A boy comes up to the bus stop. The boy looks at the girl. The girl looks at the boy.

The girl says hello to the boy and the boy says hello to the girl. The girl and the boy talk for a while. The bus is late. Finally the bus arrives. The bus takes the boy and the girl into town.

18.2. Do it! Don't do it!

Imperative	Negative Imperative
Go home.	Don't go home.
Eat the hamburger.	Don't eat the hamburger.
Read the newspaper.
	Don't watch those movies.
Go skiing in the Alps.
	Don't believe her.
Tidy up your room.
	Don't jump over the fence.
Fly to New York.
	Don't buy any red roses for her.

18.3. Homonyms. Same pronunciation, different spelling:

- it's and its .....It's.... a nice day today. The dog hasn't eaten ..... dinner yet.
- their and they're ..... having ..... lunch at an expensive restaurant.
- to, too and two I'm going ..... the shops .....buy ..... T-shirts. – Can you buy me one, .....?
- hour and our ..... football coach always says: ..... will come!
- here and hear Come ..... ! I can't ..... you!
- know and no I ..... you have ..... interest in American football.
- right and write Please ..... the ..... answer here.
- see and sea Can you ..... the..... from here?