

It's April.
 In April it often rains.
 But today is a nice day.
 The sun is shining.
 Hugo is going for a walk.
 He likes walking on the grass.
 Is the sun still shining?
 No, the weather is changing.
 Hugo sees raindrops falling from the sky.
 Hugo hurries.
 The rain is coming nearer.
 Hugo is running fast.
 He can feel the rain now.
 He doesn't like getting wet.
 He runs as fast as he can.
 Suddenly he arrives at a river.
 He can't stop.
 He falls into the water.
 He is wet.
 The rain doesn't matter to him now.

Look at the sentences:

It never rains. - It's raining.

Now do the same:

(Drop the adverbs of frequency such as always, never, usually, seldom, rarely, still etc. Change the sentence into the present continuous tense)

- The sun always shines in Southern California. ....
- They never walk on the grass. ....
- Hugo always hurries. ....
- The weather seldom changes. ....
- Raindrops usually fall from the sky. ....
- He never falls in the water. ....
- Does he still look angry? .....